PUTNAM BOOKS AND AUTHORS

A letter of elusive perfume but rather a biography has been released at this desk, asking why we seldom damn (to gently paraphrase the term) a book. Dear Heart—We come to praise Caesar, not to bury him.

In His Father's

How much further on the trail? By the way, how the title of his son's last book, "Average Americans," would have pleased the father!

The Ostrich and the Best Seller. It is a strange ostrich-like attitude of mind that is blind to the merit of a best seller. Surely a novelist that can each year sell over 100,000, which means 600,000 readers, must offer something of sterling merit—at least a good story—with all its prime essentials.

Ethel Dell from her "Way of an Eagle" down through the long series of successes to "The Top of the World" and now the new Rosa Mundi has such a record. Six hours of sheer entertainment, or ten, or twelve, according to your tempo, await you in

Rosa Mundi

Didn't know there were so many medals in the world as are shown in

Orders, Decorations and Insignia by Col. Robert E. Wyllie. All nations are represented. We counted no less than 63 medals for the U. S. Army alone, all brightly blazoned in beautiful detail, to say nothing of shoulder and collar bars, and the orders of the Bath, the Palm, the Black Star, the Earthquake, the Solidaridad from Panama, and the Kamemeha from far Hawaii, the Star of Romania, the Obelisk, the Golden Kite, the Wen-Hu, the Chah-Ho, St. George, St. Stanislaus and all those of the Saints and legions of others, unmarked by toll and have, and all profusely illustrated in color. An artistic work, a beautiful work—the wonder is not that it costs nine dollars but that it doesn't cost more.

S. R. O. sign is out at the Belasco for Deburau. Perhaps that's the reason Alf Head, the boss little press-agent for Belasco, never sent us those deadheads, although we sent him a copy of the book Deburau. Fair play Alf, say we. (Perhaps those italics will help.)

We can't get away from that book, although we have called it crazy—the Blue Wound, we mean. Again Mered has the floor:

"For what he believes, or to destroy what he believes, man willingly lays down his life. To believe is a perverse act of the human will. Belief says that these things shall be true and all the other things which are contradictory shall be untrue. Truth does not require to be believed. Contradiction is a principle of force, therefore true in itself."

"The first city was as the last city—a forethought of escape—from toil, by means of trade, invention, bauble-making, cunning, and magic."

(A New York restaurant): "Public and therefore democratic—the competition not in democratic feasting but in mobbish manners—a contest in nonchalance—the honors to the most apathetic and least impressed!"

(A New York apartment): "Now a counter-clerk or a bookkeeper aspires to keep a wife for recreation only. She should be fragile, decorative, unmarked by toil and have, at least one tame slave to conquer."

We wish we had one—we are still mourning our lost Pomona—and the spoons.

OUT OF THE AIR By INEZ HAYNES IRWIN

It is difficult to decide which is the heroine of this new mystery story—the lovely, sad, dead woman who haunts it or the beautiful, gay, modern girl who is at the heart of it. $2.00

Holy Rollers' Case Is Postponed to Wednesday

Moss Faction Gets Possession of Church by Strategy and Locks It Up

NORTH BERGEN, N. J., March 25.—Neighbors of the Holy Rollers church and school on the Boulevard here were relieved to-day to learn that the hearing in the case of the Rev. Ernest L. Whitcomb and his supporters, who are charged with disorderly conduct, had been postponed until Wednesday.

What with the battle that had been raging for more than a week between the blind preacher's followers and those of the Rev. Harold H. Moss, the neighbors haven't had much peace, day or night. They are used to disturbances, as the Holy Rollers are subject to religious paroxysms, which seize them sometimes in the depths of night, but the recent hostilities put it over any holy rolling ever seen in North Bergen.

The Moss faction, which had been excluded from the buildings by Mr. Whitcomb's followers, in spite of the fact that Mr. Moss had been elected pastor by the trustees, gained possession by strategy yesterday and have locked up every building as tight as a drum. It is expected that the armistice will last until the hearing on Wednesday.
